All members of the Easter Island Foundation receive the Rapa Nui Journal, published twice a year, normally in May and October. Each issue contains scientific articles by experts in various fields of Pacific studies and features book reviews, events and news from Easter Island and the Pacific.

Your membership will help the Easter Island Foundation maintain its programs, which include promoting research on Easter Island and other Polynesian islands; working towards the conservation and protection of Easter Island, its history, culture and environment; providing scholarships to academically promising Easter Island students of Rapanui heritage; and developing an endowment fund through investments, bequests, gifts, corporate and Easter Island Foundation contributions and other sources to provide financial resources for the support of these programs.
